The Register of Locomotive Drivers

The Register of Locomotive Drivers is an on-line platform with reporting and analytical functions, based on data entered by entities. The principal objective of this application is to determine whether a given driver is hired by more than one employer. The new platform version allows the detecting of those locomotive driver's statements that require detailed verification and reporting medical statement differences, which provides information about the differences between the employer and the entity referred to in the medical statement. The results obtained from the Register of Locomotive Drivers can also be used by railway market entities for the purpose of the internal monitoring of drivers' employment with several entities. In particular, this can have a positive influence on the information exchange between the entities hiring locomotive drivers. The reference tool may also be used to generate reports containing own data and to analyse them.
