Rail passenger rights

27.07.2021

EU rules on rail passenger rights apply when you travel by rail within the EU, and generally apply to all rail journeys and services. The most important documents for every rail passenger is Regulation (EC) No 1371/2007 on rail passengers' rights and obligations. It aims at establishing rights and obligations for rail passengers in order to protect them particularly when travel is disrupted and to improve the efficiency and attractiveness of rail passenger services. Here, you can get the main information about your rights before and during a trip.

In the case of a delay of more than 60 minutes in the arrival at final destination, passengers have the right to:

- the reimbursement of the full cost of the ticket for the part of the journey not made; or
- continuation or re-routing under comparable transport conditions at the earliest opportunity or at a later date at the passengers' convenience.

If passengers do not opt for reimbursement but for continuation of the journey, they may claim a minimum compensation equivalent to:

- 25% of the ticket price for a delay of 60 to 119 minutes;
- 50% of the ticket price for a delay of 120 minutes or more.

Railway undertakings may introduce a minimum threshold under which payments for compensation will not be paid. This threshold shall not exceed EUR 4.

In the case of a delay in arrival or departure of more than 60 minutes, passengers have the right to:

- receive information on the situation and the estimated departure and arrival time;
- meals and refreshments within reasonable limits;
- accommodation where a stay of one or more nights becomes necessary;
- transport to the railway station or to the alternative departure point or to the final destination if the train is blocked on the track
